WHERE AN EIGHT-YEAR-OLD ME once read Misty of Chincoteague and other horse books on the dock beside my sunbathing mom, my niece and nephew now swim and dive. (At the time of this photo, Marieve and Justin were one and three.) The family cottage legacy has been passed on to the next generation, and I can't wait to see what the future holds.

he old Chevy lumbered along Highway 2, a cloud of dust billowing in its wake. It was the late 1940s and my grandparents were on their way to the building site of their cottage, my eight-year-old dad and seven-year-old uncle slumbering in the back seat. The newly bought property, northeast of Peterborough, Ont., on the cusp of the Canadian Shield, was marked by scrubby pines, red sandy soil and seemingly endless low-lying wild blueberry bushes.

For my working class grandparents, cottaging was a dream they never thought they would realize. It was my savvy grandmother who had heard through her church social circle of a sell-off of waterfront Crown land at a mere 30 cents per square foot. My grandfather built a simple cabin on the plot from mostly recycled materials. As the years passed, the cottage (and the family) slowly grew. Dinner parties were hosted, children were raised, books were read and homemade waterskis were carefully crafted.

As the cottage changed hands through the generations, so too did its decor. The latest iteration was last year. Now in my older sister's hands, it underwent a much-needed makeover that I oversaw to suit her stylish aesthetic. (See what it looks like now in "The Family Stone," page 100.) But it still retains the same quiet qualities. Neither posh nor high tech, it's a peaceful spot for reflection, fun and, most of all, family.

To me, those are the essentials of summer magic: the elements that transcend the material things - slowing down and basking not only in the sun, but also in the warmth of well-loved company. And when, at the end of a long summer's day, you have to go indoors, it's about returning to a comfortable, enduring space you love, that, like all good things, just gets better with age.

The stunningly beautiful photos of the courtyard designed by landscape architect Myke Hodgins (page 116) and TV personality Jillian Harris's tips for creating a cozy outdoor space (page 108) in the May 2015 issue were a welcome reminder that you don't have to sacrifice your connection to nature just because you live in an urban environment. With a little ingenuity and the right mix of plants, you can transform a dull outdoor area into a relaxing garden retreat that feels removed from the hustle and bustle of city life.

TIME IS OF THE ESSENCE

Attend to spills or stains immediately, before they seep into the filling. Push as much of the filling as you can out of the way before spot-treating the casing with water and mild dishwashing liquid.

Use a large-capacity frontloading washing machine (if need be, go to a laundromat) or hand wash in the bathtub.

DON'T

Use a top loader, which can pack down the filling, or a machine too small to comfortably fit the dry duvet.

keep duvets fresh

Everything you need to know about duvets and how to maintain them.

PRODUCER MARY I EVITSKI

A duvet is often an investment piece and even infrequent laundering can damage it, so proper maintenance is key. Opt for a duvet cover, which protects better than a flat sheet. Keep the filling evenly distributed and smooth by fluffing the duvet regularly. Also air it out a few times a year by hanging it, sans cover, on a clothesline to preserve its fresh scent. If the duvet and its filling ever get soiled, launder with care. Start by checking the label. If the duvet can handle machine washing, use warm water and mild detergent. Do not wring the duvet before placing it in the dryer on the low setting. Add dryer balls, which prevent clumping, and a few clean, dry towels to speed up the process.

Fill the Gap

NOT SURE WHICH FILLING IS BEST? HERE'S A BREAK-DOWN OF THE MOST COMMON MATERIALS.

Down: The most effective insulator, resulting in lightweight options that pack serious heat; pricey and associated with allergies.

Feather: Cost-effective and firm; allergenic, heavy, and larger feathers can poke through fabric, so look for high-threadcount casings.

Synthetic: Typically made of polyester, low cost and non-allergenic; can get bulky and doesn't keep heat as well as natural options.

DID YOU KNOW

Down's fill power (400 to 900) is a measure of how well it insulates.

The higher the fill power, the longer lasting, softer and warmer a down duvet.

Prince Edward County

A breath of fresh air two hours east of Toronto, the County is peppered with small towns and has a laid-back vibe with the bonus of delicious restaurants and wineries and cute shops.

Day 1

Check into the Drake Devonshire (3). Each of the cozy light-filled rooms in this iron-foundryturned-hotel has a modern lake house vibe, with eclectic furniture and original artwork. While you're here, dine at the restaurant. I had buttermilk pancakes and a cup of strong coffee for breakfast while blissfully staring at the stunning view of the lake.

After breakfast, cycle or drive along the pastoral back roads that form the self-guided Taste Trail, which links restaurants, artisanal food producers, wineries and breweries. My favourite pit stops include Norman Hardie Winery and Vineyard (1), Slickers for ice cream and Grange of Prince Edward.

If it's after 11 a.m., venture just off the trail to Hinterland Wine Company to taste its signature sparkling wine and enjoy a pint at its new brewery, County Road Beer (2). For a picnic on the shore of Lake Ontario, stop in at Rosehall Run to pick up a bottle of County wine and some wholesome fare, such as salads, sandwiches and cheese and charcuterie, from Picnic PEC (4), a food truck operating on the winery's premises.

on a Saturday, go for a late dinner and stay for the live music at The Speakeasy bar, which offers craft beers on tap, cider, wine and cocktails.

Start with a latté and a freshly baked muffin from Tall Poppy Café (steps away from Drake Devonshire), then head to

If you're in a flowery mood, check out Sas Long's Floralora Flowers (5) (by appointment only) or find her blooms at the Honey Pie Hives and Herbals farm store. INGREDIENTS

MAKES 10 (1/3 CUP) POPS

- 6 cups peeled and chopped fresh nectarines
- ½ cup granulated sugar
- tbsp freshly squeezed lemon juice
- 3/4 cup vanilla yogurt
- ½ cup malted milk drink mix, such as Ovaltine

DIRECTIONS

Place the nectarines, sugar and lemon juice in a large skillet over medium-high heat and cook until the fruit has softened. Remove from the heat and purée the mixture in a blender until smooth. Transfer the purée to a bowl and chill in the refrigerator until completely cooled, about 2 hours.

In a small bowl, stir the yogurt with the malted milk drink mix until combined.

In another small bowl, loosely stir together about 5 tablespoons of the nectarine purée with 1 tablespoon of the yogurt mixture and transfer to a pop mould. Repeat with the remaining purée and yogurt mixture until all the moulds are filled. Insert a Popsicle stick into the centre of each mould. Place the moulds in the freezer and chill until the pops are solid, about 8 hours or overnight. Keep frozen until ready to serve.

bright idea

Modern, neutral and light are the hallmarks of this kitchen reno.

TEXT LESLEY YOUNG | PHOTOGRAPHY ALEX LUKEY | STYLING MORGAN LINDSAY

ABOVE White back-painted glass uppers are an elegant, refined alternative to high-gloss lacquer. "The uppers, while neutral, are definitely the kitchen's focal point," says homeowner Eva Lamb. "Everyone who comes over comments on them." A double sink allows for piling up dishes and prepping food at the same time, says Eva. Cork was chosen for the flooring because it's softer underfoot than tile.

For more than 10 years, Eva Lamb had her eye on a condo building in midtown Toronto. When the emerging artist finally took the plunge and purchased her prized unit three years ago, she was happy to overlook the 1970s layout and decor to gain ravine, park and city skyline views. Major renovations were in order, and the kitchen was at the top of the list. "I cook and entertain a lot, so I needed it to be very functional," says Eva. She also wanted every item in the space to be beautiful and, above all else, bright yet neutral.

The planning process

"I wanted all the renovations to be done before I moved in, and I knew custom cabinetry could take a long time to make," says Eva. With roughly three months before she took possession, Eva headed straight to AyA Kitchens & Baths and enlisted the help of senior kitchen designer Amy Dillon. Amy drew up a plan based on an inspiration tear sheet Eva had given her of an airy kitchen featuring bleached-wood cabinetry. Since Eva desired a clean, modern look but also wanted to maximize storage, the designer suggested using a condo-sized fridge and dishwasher. A narrow breakfast bar was added to ensure sufficient counter space.

The design decisions Keeping in mind Eva's kitchen inspiration, Amy started with white uppers. But not just any white uppers: They're back-painted glass, which draws in light from the huge windows and bounces it around the small space. To continue the streamlined aesthetic, Amy suggested flat-panelled barley-stained white oak bottom cabinets and Cambria quartz countertops that flow up the backsplash. Eva focused her efforts on shopping for the perfect appliances, knowing she wanted standout ones: "They're the biggest tools in your kitchen, so they should look nice!"

The result "I would do a kitchen reno again because I find picking everything out so much fun," says Eva.

ABOVE The bevelled refrigerator door echoes the clean lines throughout the kitchen "I could have left the wall above the range open, but I needed the extra storage," says Eva (pictured far left) of the two narrow cabinets flanking the range hood.

STOOL, Casalife.

RIGHT Upper cabinets open out and up on sturdy hinges. "It takes some getting used to," says Eva with a laugh.

FAR RIGHT It's worthwhile to invest in pullout drawers for narrow, deep cabinets. "It's so handy to have all my oils, vinegars and spices accessible when I'm cooking," says Eva.

Go on. Pick a tip.

That marks the start of one small healthy change you can make.

You see, Meta powder contains 100% naturally sourced psyllium fibre, the kind I use (and rave about). The kind of fibre that helps to temporarily suppress your appetite when taken prior to a meal* and even lowers your cholesterol levels.

Write it. Live it.

Write your goal down. Read it before you go to sleep. Tomorrow, do one small thing to help with that goal. Like having Meta in your morning glass of water to increase fibre in your diet.

Walk This Way

Set a number of steps you must take before going to bed. Like 10,000 a day. Cool down and get your fibre by adding Meta to a Lemonade Chiller.

Hello H₂O

Staying hydrated could help you from overeating. It fills you up if you drink some before a meal.

Even better, add Meta.

Kitchen Clean Out

Purge your cabinets of cookies, chips, and fatty meals. Move Meta from the medicine cabinet to the kitchen, then stock up on fresh fruits, veggies and whole grains.

Harley's Smoothie

5 almonds, 1 red apple, 1 banana, 3/4 cup nonfat Greek yogurt, 1/2 cup nonfat milk, 1 tsp. Meta, 1/2 tsp. ground cinnamon

Call a Pal

If you need some motivation to work out, call a friend. After you work out, add Meta to your water. Rehydrate and get a fibre boost.

A Smoothie Start

Breakfast kick-starts your metabolism and helps keep you alert throughout the day. Rushed for time and looking for ways to get Meta? Try a Banana-Orange Frosty with a scoop of Meta.

Shop Smart

Studies show that snacking before a grocery trip leads to less unhealthy food purchases. Why not get your fibre too?
Mix a smoothie, add Meta and go.

Eat Out Less

Home cooking will cut out excess salt or flavouring condiments found in restaurants. Add Meta to your dinner beverage for extra fibre too.

Meta Minder

Set reminders in your calendar 15 min before mealtime. That'll ensure you break out the Meta in time to dine.

Get full Meta recipes, tips & coupons at metaeffect.ca

Oh, Mr. Sun

Get out and soak up some Vitamin D for strong bones and a good mood. While you're at it, add a scoop of Meta to your water bottle and get your fibre too.

Mind Changer

Change your mindset and you have the power to change your life. Want to add more fibre to your diet? Keep Meta at the office and at home.

Dine Out Tip

Drink a Meta powder smoothie before you dine out. It'll make you feel full and help suppress your appetite.*

"Dream Weaver" takes on new meaning when your bed is layered with pretty white linens. The bed frame is covered in one piece of linen that can be removed and washed, and its headboard is curved like a wingback chair, creating an intimate environment for reading, cuddling and dreaming. Herma made the artwork above it with plaster that she let crack (to mimic an ancient European wall); she secured small ceramics to it with twine to create an oldworld look with lots of dimension.

Not a huge fan of hanging photography in the traditional sense, Herma had this old photo printed on canvas, then ripped its edges to make it look vintage. She secured the canvas to a piece of weathered barnboard using antique nails from her store. And the photo itself has meaning: It's of her husband's high school football team, right after they won a tournament.

Designer Neil Asselin helps a city couple transform a dark country chapel into a heavenly light-filled retreat.

Designer Neil Asselin fitted the living room with cabinetry that provides storage and a perch for the TV. "I like that the cabinets are white so they blend in, and they're low, so they don't compete with the windows." Not only practical, they also offer a spot for decorative accents, such as the clock, which was a gift to the homeowners from Neil.

ABOVE Brick fence posts topped with stone finials and covered with vines frame a gate to the neighbouring farm. "We often see cows grazing on the other side of the fence," says homeowner Michael Stewart. "This view is bucolic and really makes you feel like you're living in the countryside. I think the gate opens but I've never tried because I don't want to disturb the vines!"

Sometimes a renovation requires a leap of faith.

This was especially true for real estate agent Michael Stewart and retailer Chris Clancy, the Toronto couple who became owners of this late-19th-century chapel in Roslin, Ont., about a year and a half ago. "A friend of ours was the previous owner, and we had visited him at the property, which is just two hours from Toronto," says Michael. "We'd been looking for a retreat, and when he put the chapel up for sale, we remembered how much we loved it and made an offer." Attracted to the chapel's acre-plus lot, separate guest house and proximity to the vibrant restaurants and wineries of Prince Edward County, the couple was less taken with its 1,400-square-foot interior. Spread out over one floor, it had dark walls and a cedar ceiling that Michael recalls as "heavy and enclosed more of a church than a living space."

RIGHT The paint splotches around this front door pull have a misleading air of antiquity. "They're actually from us," says Michael. "Chris and I were doing last-minute paint touchups to prep the place for guests, and I guess we rushed it a bit." The result is a perfectly imperfect effect that looks like it's been there for ages.

The bedroom's minimal design allows the tiny stained-glass window to be the focal point. "It's the only strong ecclesiastical element in the place," says Neil. "So honouring it seemed logical."

a church and more like a home." The transformation took three months to complete and, soon after, the home was christened Roslin Hall. "We were thinking of calling it Roslin Abbey," says Neil. "But that sounded far too grand for such a cozy place."

With the chapel's previous public incarnation in mind, the couple rents out the space when they're not there (roslinhall.ca). "It's almost booked up for the entire summer and quickly filling up for the rest of the year, too," says Michael. "A lot of our guests are repeat visitors, so I guess you could say we're preaching to the converted."

Bunkie.

For those not familiar with this sweet yet evocative term, "a bunkie is someone's personal sleeping cottage," explains Jessica Kelly, a Toronto-based designer and the summer resident of this rustic-chic cabin. So while a bunkhouse lacks all the modern conveniences, such as a kitchen, bathroom and a walled-off bedroom, this one has effortless white-on-white cottage style in abundance and offers a serene hideaway for Jessica to relax, read, nap or hang out with guests. The property, located on an island in Stoney Lake, Ont., belongs to Jessica's family. "My parents bought a boathouse about 13 years ago, and it came with two bunkies," she says. During the summer, her parents occupy the main building, her sister uses one of the bunkies and Jessica presides over this one.

+ DECORATING

For the past two summers, Jessica spent weekends fixing up the 220-square-foot space. "We finally put some work into it," she says, as previous efforts had been dedicated to sprucing up the boathouse and the other bunkie. "When you're updating a vacation home, it takes much longer because you're not there all the time." And since they're on an island, everything had to be brought over by boat, which meant Jessica had to be judicious and confident about her choices.

One thing that struck Jessica at the start of the design process was that the interior should be mostly white. "I thought, 'This place deserves to be fresh and light.'" She created a pale and patinated envelope by whitewashing the original wood plank floors and painting the walls a soft green shade and the exposed ceiling rafters white. She also whitewashed the window she hung above the sofa to reinforce the airy vibe. The other furnishings are a creative mix of custom, vintage and hand-me-down pieces. "There's a fine line between rustic and rundown, but this place is definitely more rustic and cozy," she says, "which I'm so happy with."

TOP "It's nice to open up the French doors and enjoy a cup of coffee on the sofa when the sun comes in," says Jessica. The number "7" sign is actually a tray that she hung up for a fun touch.

MELISSA DREAM™

NATURE'S SLEEP AID

Melissa Dream™ is based on studies of how plant extracts can be used to gently calm your mind and body. Within 30 minutes, you feel a deep relaxation that can relieve stress and gently make you feel sleepy. There are no side effects, no waking up drowsy and no dependancy. It is simply nature, doing its work.

"For years I have been sleeping poorly. I would wake up at night and not be able to fall back asleep. So when I read about Melissa Dream, and that it was based on natural extracts, I gave it a try. It makes me really relaxed and I am now experiencing a much better and deeper sleep. After trying Melissa Dream, it dawned on me just how important a good night's sleep is for the enjoyment and quality of life. I love this product!" - Lynn, Canada

"My stomach would get really bloated and I would have embarrassing flatulence. My friend told me that I may have a fungal overgrowth in my intestines and recommended a product called dida. I gave dida a try. I still had some bloating initially, but after about 3 weeks with dida it was gone! No more flatulence and no more bloating! What a joy to be back to normal and not have to worry about hiding my inflated stomach."

Jane A., Sweden

THE CANDIDA CLEANSE

Normally fungus lives in harmony with our bodies but for some people, an intestinal imbalance happens and the fungus overgrows. This creates symptoms, such as stomach pains, bloating, itching, mood swings and sugar cravings.

Scientific research shows that some foods and plant extracts have strong antifungal properties. dida™ is based on this research and has been used successfully in Scandinavia for many years.

MAGICAL THINKING

The alchemy that is summer decorating starts with a fresh palette to reflect the long bright days and still sultry nights that come with the season. Add to that a patchwork of textures that invites relaxed lounging, a dash of nature's serene simplicity and a myriad of nostalgic memories and you've got a presentation that's definitely not just a trick of the eye.

her signature platinum blond hair and the moniker of her design firm – Whitewash & Co. – aren't proof of her affinity for a certain shade, then a tour of Jo Alcorn's west-end Toronto townhouse certainly is.

White permeates the light-filled interior, from the furniture and accessories right down to the paint, which isn't just any colour, but Jo Jo Whitewash, the namesake blend she custom designed for Para Paints. It was also the catalyst for her choice to infuse the 1,900-square-foot three-storey home with a fresh and crisp brio.

While the listing for the townhouse piqued her interest two years ago, tempting her with more space in her preferred neighbourhood, the viewing didn't. "I actually wasn't going to take it," she says. "All the walls were painted yellow, and there were heavy old drapes, maple cabinetry and a sad-looking patio." Before she shut the door on the property forever, her aesthetic instincts kicked in and she knew she could run with it. "I realized underneath it all, the house had good bones: 12-foot-high ceilings, detailed crown mouldings, clean lines and tons of natural light. I signed on the dotted line."

In the mood to save rather than splurge, Jo put plans for creating a dream kitchen on hold and set about transforming the existing into the exciting. First on the agenda: paint. She chose Jo Jo Whitewash, not surprisingly, to energize every room except for the master suite (which features soft lavender walls) and replaced the heavy drapery with custom shutters in the kitchen and soft white sheers in the open-concept living and dining areas. Wallet-friendly black accents, whether in the form of paint, toss cushions, rugs or artwork, were used generously throughout to animate the pale backdrop and prevent the house from feeling stark.

"The look is modern," says Jo, "but not as fussy as you might expect with a mostly white design." The casual vibe is equally considerate of her two Jack Russell terriers, Lucy and Ricky. "They have free rein of the house," she says, "so I only used white fabrics with high rub counts, such as microsuede and velvet. They're durable, washable and look better when lived in. I also entertain a lot, so I wanted my guests to feel comfortable."

Jo's decorating finesse was matched by her cost-saving savvy, which allowed her to give the space a serious facelift without the drama of renovation dust. "In the kitchen, especially, I relied on inexpensive items like paint and new hardware to make a big impact with budget-friendly flair. They'll hold me over in the meantime, as I have big dreams for this kitchen," she says, "including new flooring, a fun range hood and a marble-topped island, which will be white, of course!"

How a stylish couple and a talented designer created a simple yet sophisticated Hamptons-style retreat near Fort Langley, B.C., that honours its picturesque surroundings.

"This is a really special place," says homeowner Rashell Gouwenberg, as she lovingly describes the five-acre parcel of land where she and her husband had their Hamptons-style dream home built three years ago. The idyllic acreage on the outskirts of Fort Langley, B.C., neighbours a conservation area and boasts spectacular forest and mountain views.

After purchasing the private oasis, the couple embarked on constructing a fivebedroom 3,400-square-foot home that would complement the tranquility of its surroundings. The exterior's classic East Coast vibe was inspired by a trip to Martha's Vineyard. "It's a traditional-looking home from the outside," says Rashell. But the inside, with its more contemporary aesthetic, is a bit of a surprise. "I wanted it to feel very modern and fresh when you walked through the front door."

To help her attain this look, Rashell enlisted Leah Balderson of Vancouver's Peridot Decorative Homewear. (The pair worked so well together that Rashell made a career change and now co-owns the popular housewares store with Leah.)

Inspired by the 24-foot-high ceiling, large picture windows and open-concept main floor, Leah decided to enhance the house's airiness by injecting it with a dose of white-on-white luxury. "I find a soft palette very soothing and relaxing," she says.

Creating a modern yet inviting look in the distinctively white home involved mixing together champagne- and greytoned elements, warm metals, organic and textural accents and standout statement pieces. The show-stopping light fixtures, for instance, lend drama, but "since they each have an organic quality to them, they also add a little bit of softness and uniqueness to the spaces," says Leah.

Taking less than a year to build, the house marked the next chapter for both the land and the couple. "There's a small cabin on the property where we lived for six months while the construction was underway," says Rashell. "That year, we also got married and went to South Africa for a month because I was on the Canadian Saddle Seat World Cup team. I said: 'If our marriage can survive this, we can survive anything!'" We can't predict what lies ahead, but we're confident these two will continue to complement each other as well as their new dream home complements them.

OPPOSITE, RIGHT The kitchen's Shaker-style cabinetry, quartz countertops, marble backsplash and striped stools create a timeless look that is juxtaposed with unexpected elements like the pierced-resin pendant lights, brass hardware and distressed mirror.

When it comes to cottage style, having the latest finishes and fanciest fabrics is nice, sure – but embracing tradition and family togetherness is even better.

Determined to keep all the original doors made by her grandpa in her sister's family cottage, Style at Home editor-in-chief Erin McLaughlin updated them with a coat of white paint. The weathered teal workbench was her grandpa's as well.

The cottage is right on the waterfront, where Erin's nephew and niece, Justin and Marieve Gagnon, love to swim and explore.

LEFT Erin kept the kitchen really simple, letting the high-gloss white finishes increase the space's brightness by bouncing light around. Though Erin and her sister Alexis McLaughlin bought a new range, microwave oven and fridge, the big heartbreak was that they couldn't fit a dishwasher into the small space. Instead, a large farmhouse-style apron-front double sink offers a spot to share dishwashing duties.

BELOW A collection of glasses, vases and crisp white serveware displayed in a slate grey cabinet offers a quaint curated look that's in keeping with the rest of the (almost) all-white cottage.

CABINET, IKEA.

IT'S NOT THE SIZE of the cottage that counts - or the luxury. Cottage living is all about spending time with family and friends, following tradition and building memories. A case in point is the homey 589square-foot two-bedroom cottage in Ontario's Kawartha Lakes that's been in Style at Home editor-in-chief Erin McLaughlin's family for generations.

Now owned by Erin's elder sister, Alexis McLaughlin, the cottage was built in the 1940s by their late grandfather on land he bought and split in half with his best friend. It started as a simple one-room cabin, but over the next decade more space was added as comfort demanded and time and budget permitted. The finishes followed, including a dropped ceiling and linoleum floor ("This was the '50s after all," says Erin).

In the late '90s, Erin's grandpa passed away, and her dad, a former architect, took over the cottage. He set about beautifying it by knocking down walls and stripping it back to the studs (au revoir, dropped ceiling and linoleum floor). And it was left like that - half renovated - for several years, until Alexis started spending summer vacations there with her husband, Hugues Gagnon, and their kids, Justin, 12, and Marieve, 10. "My kids are the fourth generation here, so it's really

LEFT Fireplaces are central to Canadian cottages because they extend their use into winter. The former stone fireplace wasn't up to code, so Erin had it replaced with a castiron stove (the smallest that she could find for the petite place) and selected large, square concrete-look porcelain tiles for the wall behind it

BELOW Because they lost a bedroom in the reno. Erin incorporated a pullout sofa in the living area for an extra place to sleep on crowded weekends. With the original dropped ceiling removed, the peaked ceiling and beams are exposed to stunning effect. "It lends the illusion of space, even though the square footage is really minimal," says Erin. "It also helps to circulate air."

cool to see them play with the kids of my friends growing up," she says.

Alexis took up the cottage's cause and turned to Erin - makeover maven and decorating diva to bring it into fashion. Under the sisters, the rustic ("even ramshackle," says Erin with a laugh) cottage saw its rebirth from dark and dank into a gleaming white post-and-plank place bathed in light. With Erin on speed-dial, Hugues added insulation and tongue-and-groove siding to the thin wooden walls, replaced some of the windows and helped convert one of the three bedrooms into a spacious bathroom. But the kitchen saw the most dramatic update, with its window enlarged, a big island installed and high-gloss white elements added throughout, such as IKEA cabinetry and a subwaytiled backsplash that stretches all the way to the ceiling on one wall.

The decor itself was pared back to the basics. "We got rid of the superfluous stuff and kept the items that mean the most, then we painted everything white," says Erin. The sisters also placed particular importance on honouring the original quirks introduced by their grandpa: the mismatched window casings, the doors he made from scratch and the seams in the hardwood floors that reveal the old layout. "To me, this is the ultimate of what a cottage should be," says Erin. "You can tell there's something special here, even if you can't name it."

"It" is certainly the style, but also the storied history that seeps through every nook and cranny. It's where Erin's Ontario-based family reconnects with Alexis's Montreal-based one - memories continue to be made here. And next door? The descendants of Erin's grandfather's best friend are there, doing the very same. Because, after all, that's the magic of cottage life: continuity and togetherness.

BRUSCHETTA WITH SMASHED PEAS, MINT & PARMESAN

MAKES 16 PIECES

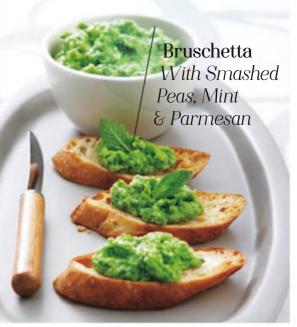

- ½ baguette, cut diagonally into sixteen 1/4"-thick slices
- tbsp olive oil, divided

Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste

- ½ cup finely chopped sweet onion
- 11/4 cups blanched refreshed peas
- cup finely grated Parmesan
- 10 fresh mint leaves + more for garnish
- tsp freshly squeezed lemon juice
- cup pea shoots for garnish (optional)

Preheat the oven to 400°F. On a rimmed baking sheet, arrange the bread slices in a single layer. Brush one side of each slice with 1 tablespoon of the olive oil and season with salt and pepper. Toast the bread in the oven until the slices are golden brown, about 10 minutes: set aside.

Meanwhile, in a small skillet set over medium heat, add the remaining 2 tablespoons olive oil and the onion. Cook, stirring often, until the onion is soft and translucent, about 4 minutes. Transfer the onion to a food processor; add the peas, Parmesan, mint leaves and lemon juice and process until well blended but still chunky. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Top each toast with 1 tablespoon of the pea mixture, a few pea shoots and an extra mint leaf. Serve.

LAMB BURGERS WITH FETA & SWEET MINT SAMBAL

MAKES 4 BURGERS

Sweet Mint Sambal

- cup thick Greek-style yogurt
- 2 tbsp Asian sweet chili sauce
- 2 tbsp chopped fresh mint leaves
- tsp freshly grated lemon zest
- tsp freshly squeezed lemon juice

Lamb Burgers

- Ib coarsely ground minced lamb
- cup crumbled feta cheese + extra for garnish
- 1/4 cup toasted pine nuts
- tbsp chopped fresh mint leaves + more for garnish
- clove garlic, minced
- tsp Dijon mustard
- tsp ground coriander

Sea salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste

- naan breads
- cup radish matchsticks
- cup cucumber matchsticks

Stir together the sambal ingredients. Season with salt and pepper and refrigerate until ready to use.

To make the burgers, mix the lamb through pepper together in a large bowl. Using wet hands, divide the mixture into 4 portions and form each into a long oval sausage shape. Flatten slightly and chill for 30 minutes in the refrigerator.

Heat the barbecue to medium-high. Brush the burgers with a little olive oil and grill until cooked through, about 6 minutes per side. Warm the naan on the grill and serve the burgers on the naan topped with the sambal, radish, cucumber, extra feta and mint leaves.

EASY WHITE CHOCOLATE MINT TRUFFLES

MAKES 16 TRUFFLES

- vanilla bean
- 1/3 cup 35% cream
- ½ cup fresh whole mint leaves
- Ib best-quality white chocolate
- oz unsalted butter, chopped
- tbsp finely chopped fresh mint leaves

Line the base and sides of an 8" square baking pan with parchment paper; set aside. Split the vanilla bean in half lengthwise and scrape out the seeds. Add the seeds and the pod to a small saucepan along with the cream and the whole mint leaves. Heat the mixture over medium heat for 1 minute. Remove from the heat and let stand to infuse for 15 minutes. Strain into a small bowl, pressing the mint leaves and vanilla seeds against the sieve to extract the most flavour.

Chop the chocolate into small, even pieces using a large serrated knife. Place the chocolate, infused cream and butter in a heavy saucepan over low heat. Stir the mixture frequently to melt the chocolate and incorporate the butter and cream. When the mixture is smooth and creamy, remove from the heat and stir in the chopped mint leaves. Pour into the baking pan and refrigerate until set, about 2 hours. Remove from the pan and cut into small squares to serve.
